

Dear Students,

The primary goal of the Speech-Language Pathology (SLP) undergraduate program is to cultivate speech-language pathologists (SLPs) who play a crucial role in the field of health sciences. SLPs work in the areas of prevention, diagnosis, and therapy for a wide range of speech, language, voice, and swallowing disorders, including speech sound disorders, fluency disorders, phonological disorders, articulation disorders, apraxia, learning disabilities, and neurodevelopmental disorders.

Our department stands out with its strong faculty and offers a curriculum that combines compulsory and elective theoretical courses with practical clinical training.

By choosing the Department of Speech-Language Pathology at Tarsus University's Faculty of Health Sciences, you will have the honor of carrying the prestigious title of a speech-language pathologist.
