MIDWIFERY

Dear Students,

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), a midwife is defined as a "person who provides the necessary care and advice during pregnancy, childbirth and postpartum, conducts normal deliveries under their own responsibility, provides care for newborns and provides family planning counseling." There is a growing need for qualified midwifery graduates worldwide to improve the quality of maternal and child health services. This has made midwifery a promising career choice for the future. Our department aims to train graduates who are competent, research-oriented, and provide services that meet the needs of the healthcare sector in protecting, developing, and sustaining maternal and child health. We strive to be a nationally and internationally preferred department that produces graduates who are well-equipped to contribute to the advancement of midwifery practices.

Our student-centered department values the opinions and ideas of our students and provides a supportive learning environment with comprehensive counseling services. Our dedicated academic staff, composed of experienced and dynamic professionals in the field, is committed to educating future midwives with the highest standards of professionalism.

The Midwifery Department offers a curriculum that emphasizes theoretical and practical aspects of the profession. Our curriculum is designed to be compatible with the European Union and to meet the Midwifery Graduation Criteria. Students have the opportunity to apply their theoretical knowledge in practical settings through our faculty's technical laboratories and internships at relevant hospitals and healthcare institutions. Additionally, interdisciplinary education is provided through a variety of elective courses offered throughout the undergraduate program.

Midwives who graduate from the Midwifery Department can work in primary healthcare institutions, hospitals, and maternity preparation centers. With further postgraduate education, they can also specialize as midwife educators in healthcare institutions or pursue academic careers as faculty members in higher education institutions. Students who successfully complete the Midwifery Department at Tarsus University's Faculty of Health Sciences are awarded the title of "EBE" (Midwife). We invite you to join our Midwifery Department to receive a quality education and become a member of a profession that has been known and held critical importance since the dawn of humanity.
