FACULTY OF APPLIED SCIENCES

FINANCE AND BANKING

Dear Students,

The role and importance of the financial services sector in the world are increasing day by day with globalization, and the sector needs well-trained individuals.

The main objective of our Department of Finance and Banking is to increase the effectiveness of the financial sector by training students with both theoretical and practical knowledge and skills and to train individuals who can meet the needs of the sector. For this purpose, individuals who aim to develop their own innovative and analytical solutions to the recurring problems of the sector are trained in the department by establishing close contact with the sector in order to follow the needs. The department also aims to raise awareness in students about the environment, ethical values and social responsibility.

In our department, theoretical and applied training is provided to students who plan to work in the field of finance and banking. The Department of Finance and Banking is designed to prepare students for careers in banks, brokerage firms, accounting and finance departments of corporate companies, insurance companies, risk management, leasing, factoring, forfeiting and other related fields.

In addition to our equipped and smiling academics, the participation of experienced managers from the business world in courses or events ensures that students are integrated with the business world. In addition, it is aimed to support theoretical knowledge with practical applications with 30 days of internship.

In summary, our department focuses on training individuals who are strong in ethics and social aspects, who have assimilated financial concepts, who have the ability to make quick decisions and think, and who harmonize theory and practice in financial transactions. In this context, we invite you to our Department of Finance and Banking to prepare you as qualified individuals needed by the banking and finance sector.
