FIRST AND EMERGENCY AID

Dear students,

The rapid development of pre-hospital emergency health services in our country and the increasing need for medical practice for emergency patients benefiting from the service and its direct relationship with human health increases the importance of this program. It is important to be able to provide emergency care and rescue services to the patient or injured person before the hospital, to be careful and cool-headed, to determine the condition of the patient or injured person with appropriate communication skills and to apply the correct medical intervention. In order to do all this, well-trained first and emergency aid workers are needed.

As the First and Emergency Aid Program, our aim is; Able to provide basic and advanced life support to patients and injured people in pre-hospital emergency health services; Able to recognize current and possible traumas and make the appropriate emergency approach; To train health technicians who ensure that patients or injured patients who have received first aid can reach hospitals safely by ambulance. Our academic staff consists of a professional, experienced and dynamic team in their field; They work devotedly to train professional health technicians in the field of first and emergency aid.

It will be a great pleasure for us to see you, our prospective students, among us in our program where we aim to help our students start their professional lives with firm and confident steps. We wish you all success in your education process and at all stages of your life.
